09/55343/

ABSTRACT

Disclosed are MinD protein coding sequences that play a critical role in regulating the division of plastids in plants. Also disclosed is a method for obtaining transgenic plants with novel phenotypes, characterized by alterations in plastid shape, number and/or size.